LOOMIS ASKS FOR LOYALTY

OUSTED INSTRUCTOR BEGS STUDENTS TO STAND BY SCHOOL.

DEFENDS HIS ACTION

Instructor Says It Was a Protest Against Low Standards of Certification and Credits; Not Defamation

An appeal to the student body of the State Teachers College to "stand by the school and always act for its best interest" was issued late this afternoon by Burt W. Loomis, instructor in the education department who is under suspension following charges of disloyalty and the circulation of defamatory statements against the institution.

Mr. Loomis defends his action as being a protest against low standards of certification and credit rather than a defamation of the school.

Following is the statement handed to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune by Mr. Loomis this afternoon:

"It has come to my attention that some of the students of the College have become fearful of the validity of their credits since the recent newspaper discussion of credit in our college. I hope the students will not become alarmed. I hope they will not talk going to other schools. It seems to me that my position in the matter should not be considered defamatory but as a protest against low standards for certification and credit. Such a stand can only raise the confidence of other institutions in that both Mr. Keller and myself have been on the accrediting committee to pass on credits.

"It is my hope that the students will stand by their school and always act for the best interest of the same.

"Signed

"BURT W. LOOMIS."

LEADERS TELL STUDENT SIDE

RESENT ARTICLE IN GAZETTE AND IDLE GOSSIP.

A MISREPRESENTATION

Ray Blomfield Scores False Rumors and Student Committee Makes Statement of True Situation.

The Committee's Statement.

Following is the resolution adopted by the student committee today:

We, the undersigned, duly authorized committee of the student body, believe that a statement of the attitude of the student association is necessary to correct existing rumors and published statements of its attitude in the case of Dean George H. Colbert.

We are and have been sincerely interested in the election of Dean Colbert as instructor of mathematics. We have employed what we believe to be every honorable means of making this possible, because we believe it to be to the best interests of our college. Our loyalty to S. T. C. is unchanged, and we resent any statement or inference from any source designed to cast discredit on our college, which has so successfully served the educational interests of Northwest Missouri for the last twenty years.

We have implicit faith in President Lamkin, whose integrity and ability have made possible the substantial growth of our college in the last few years.

We realize that the board of regents is, as it should be, the legal governing body of this institution, and in its present members we have placed our faith, and extend to them our thanks for the hearing which they gave us on July 14. We furthermore believe that when they have had time to consider our petition at length they will see fit to retain Dean Colbert.

Signed—

C. E. RISING
LOUISE B. FREEMAN
WARD E. BARNES
GRACE GRAVES.

Resentment against unwarranted newspaper articles and "gossip," a vote of confidence in Uel W. Lamkin, president of the College, and an attitude of respectful waiting, in regard to the George H. Colbert matter marked the situation among student leaders at the State Teachers College today.

Following the publication in this morning's St. Joseph Gazette of an artcle concerning a mass meeting of the students of the College yesterday afternoon, Ray Blomfield, president of the student association, issued a statement today refuting statements in the article and defining the position of the students.

A statement was also issued today by the student committee which has been officially handling the petition of the students for reinstatement of George H. Colbert as a faculty member of the College. This statement expressed confidnce in the board of regents of the institution and made plain the attitude of respect toward and belief in Mr. Lamkin.

Reporter Out of Order.

The student meeting yesterday was held to consider the Colbert matter alone. It was attended by Samuel Freedman, a representative of the St. Joseph Gazette and who also claims to represent the Kansas City Joural-Post. Mr. Freedman attempted to speak before the students, but was declared out of order.

Finally he was asked to leave the College auditorium by a motion passed to exclude representatives of the press from the meeting. After being asked to leave, he again attempted to speak but was cut off by Blomfield.

This morning the Gazette carried an article saying that it was indicated at the meeting that a petition would be sent to Governor Baker calling for a board of inquiry unless the College regents reinstated Mr. Colbert at their meeting July 27.

Blomfield denied this statement this morning. He said:

Statement Denied.

"After reading the article in this morning's St. Joseph Gazette, I can only feel that it was direct retaliation for the action taken yesterday at the meeting by the student body against a man claiming to represent that paper.

"I refer to the matter of petitioning the governor of Missouri in regard to the Colbert matter. While such action was discussed and was even presented

Money Is Found in Shoe Sent to Shop for Repairs

Forty dollars in checks and drafts was found in the inside of a shoe at the Bee Hive Shoe Store yesterday.

A woman had sent her shoes to the store to be repaired. When the repair man was working on the heel of one of the shoes, he discovered some paper, evidently placed in the shoe to keep tacks from hurting the foot. Examing the paper, he discovered it was uncashed checks and drafts to the amount of $40.

The woman was notified. Yes, she got her money.

EARLY START ON CAMPAIGNS

INTEREST BY ELECTORATE SPUR SENATORIAL RACES

STUMPING IS NOW ON

With Several Horses Already in the Middle West Field Intense Interest Promised Before Balloting Time.

Chicago, July 16.—Unusual interest by the electorate has spurred senatorial candidates in the Middle West, particularly Wisconsin and Illinois, off on early campaigns that promise to become intense before the hour for balloting arrives.

While the elections are more than three months hence, George E. Brennan, democratic leader in Illinois and his party's choice for the senate today opened his campaign at Danville with a blast against the Volstead act.

Col. Frank L. Smith, republican candidate, is rapidly recuperating from an operation and as soon as he regains sufficient strength he too will make a swing of the state.

Governor John J. Blaine and Sen. Irvine Lenroot are fighting a bitter battle in the Badger state for the republican senatorial nomination and their campaigns take on added zest as the days go by. The Wisconsin primaries occur in September.

Aside from a rousing unusual attention within their own border lines, the Wisconsin and Illinois campaigns are attracting nationwide interest because of the issue involved.

Long his party leader in Illinois and always a participant in the proverbial "back roof conferences" when democratic presidential candidates were decided upon, Brennan has virtually staked his political future on the outcome of his senate race—his first quest for public office.

Brennan has raised prohibition as the paramount issue in the campaign and has securely rivetted a "Dripping wet" plant in the top most part of his platform. The platform of Smith and Brennan differ only in that Brennan has come out wet while Smith has yet to make clear his stand on the prohibition question although he received the support of the anti-saloon league in his primary fight with Sen. William B. McKinley. Both are opposed to American adherence to the world court.

Dr. G. S. Cox and Family to Visit Here

Former Pastor of First M. E. Church Here Will Arrive About August 9.

Cox, while Mrs. Cox goes on to Denver, Colo., to spend a week with Dr. Cox who is teaching in the Iliff School of Theology. Mrs. Cox will join her children at Burlingame, Kan., her former home, about July 23 and will visit there until early in August when Dr. Cox will join his family.

Predicts Coolidge Won't Be Candidate

Lincoln, Neb., July 16.—On his return here today from Washington, Representative McLaughlin, Republican, Nebraska, openly predicted that President Coolidge would not be a candidate for re-election.

"LET MIDDLE WEST UNITE"

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER URGES STRONG ORGANIZATION

"MAKE EAST LISTEN"

Business and Agriculture Should Join to Put Over "Nutty Middle West Viewpoint," He Says.

Kansas City, July 16.—A Middle West Chamber of Commerce, comprising a highly organized formation of political and economic resources of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys to wage an aggressive fight in the East for the interests of this portion of the country was urged by Senator Arthur Capper, Republican of Kansas, in an address today before various civic organizations here.

"The leading industries of the East are willing to listen to reason if our methods are put into clear, forceful expressions by the means of a large and powerful organization," said Senator Capper.

"Such projects as the inland waterways from the Lakes to the Gulf are essentially sound and would create great prosperity for the Middle West, but we must back them unitedly and intensively."

Senator Capper suggested a dual organization of business and agriculture united in a chamber of commerce to represent the Middle West would prove a powerful enough machine to push through the demands of that section over the opposition of the "Forty-five minutes from Broadway" individual who talks about the "nutty Middle Western viewpoint."

Husband Is Cleared of Murder Suspicion

Wife, Slain at His Elbow, Aroused Bandit's Ire by Blow With Handbag Kansas City Police Are Told.

Kansas City, July 16.—James Christos, whose wife was killed last night by a negro bandit who attempted to rob the couple as they returned home after a moving picture show, was released by police late today after he had convinced Chief Lincoln B. Toyne that he had no connection with the murder.

A swinging blow in the bandit's face with her handbag cost Mrs. Christos her life, when the negro shot. At her elbow stood her husband, his hands upraised in compliance with the bandit's command. The murder took place about three hundred feet from the Christos home.

Christos, owner of a resturant at 529 Walnut street, had been held up before in the same block.

He and his wife had discussed holdups, Christos said.

"I'll never let a man hold me up," she once told her husband.

Christos said he had told her it would be wiser to submit.

One Seriously Injured in Train Derailment

Score of Others Cut and Bruised When Pittsburgh Express Is Derailed at Summerville, Ohio.

East Liverpool, Ohio, July 16.—One man was seriously injured and a score of others cut and bruised today when the Pittsburgh night express of the Pittsburgh-Ft. Wayne & Chicago routed over the Cleveland-Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania line was derailed at Summerville, seventeen miles west of here.

Joseph Harris, 25, of Detroit, passenger, who was cut about the face, head and lower parts of the body and who is believed to be internally injured, was brought to the East Liverpool hospital.

Two Pullman cars and a day coach were overturned when a coupling pin broke, causing the locomotive to break away from the tender and pile up with three other cars behind it. Passengers in the day coach and two sleepers escaped without injury.

Seeks Great Power to Aid French Finances

Paris Government Would Be Authorized To Make Laws By Decrees, Providing Financial Measures.

Paris, July 16.—The French Chamber of Deputies was this afternoon seeking to create government dictatorial powers to stabilize the financial situation.

The proposed law, signed by President Doumergue and sent to the Chamber for action, provided:

(1) The government is authorized until November 30, 1926 to make laws by decrees, providing measures for financial retrenchment and stabilization of the franc.

(2) Decrees made by the government will be submitted for the ratification of the Chamber at the opening session of 1927.

SAYS TARIFF IS THE SAME

REPRESENTATIVE OLDFIELD GIVES DEMOCRATIC VIEWS.

TO RELIEVE FARMERS

Reduction of Rates in Fordney-McCumber Bill Would Cut $5,000,000,000 "Tariff Tax," He Says.

By Representative William A. Oldfield, Democrat of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee.

Written for the International News Service.

Washington, July 16—The tariff question will be the great issue in the approaching congressional campaigns, and farm relief will play a prominent part in deciding the coming election, together with reduction in freight rates.

Corruption in politics, as exemplified in the recent three million dollar Pennsylvania primaries, will give the voters an opportunity to cast their ballots for honesty in government, but the great issue will revolve around the tariff question.

Because of the high rates of the Fordney-McCumber bill, the tariff has increased the cost of necessary articles by five billion dollars a year to the consuming public. As the farmers constitute one-third of the population of the country and one-third of the purchasing power, the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill costs them $1,500,000,000 a year in tariff taxes.

The net income from farm property in 1925 was $1,300,000,000. Therefore the high rates in the Fordney-McCumber law cost the farmers at least $200,000,000 more than the net income of their property in 1925.

We mean to bring these facts home to the people. The present administration, being under the complete control and domination of the protected manufacturers of New England, will never lower the present high tariff rates. If the Democrats carry the house and Senate in the November elections, the first thing they will do will be to reduce the tariff on manufactured articles which the farmer has to pay, and thereby save agriculture the $1,500,000,000 now being assessed in traiff taxes.

The Democrats believe this is the greatest farm relief legislation the farmer could get. We shall continue, however, to stand on the Democratic platform of 1924, pledging ourselves to the lowering of rail and water rates and restoration of the farmers' export market.

Proposal to End Coal Strike O. K. in Part

Plans of Archbishop of Canterberry and Other Ecclesiastics Taken With Reservations

London, July 16. — The executive committee of the miners federation has accepted with reservations the proposal made by the Arch Bishop of Canterberry and other ecclesiastics for the settlement of the coal strike, it was learned this afternoon.

If the government now accepts the ecclesiastics' proposal peace negotiations may resume next week, a member of the miners' executive committee informed the International News Service.

The ecclesiastics' peace proposal provides for a return of the men to work at their old wages and hours, the government to continue the subsidy to the operators for four months and for the wage scales to be worked out in the meantime by arbitration.

WET AND DRY AT LUNCHEON

SMITH AND COOLIDGE TO MEET AT WHITE PINES.

BARS PHOTOGRAPHERS

President Declares It Can't Be Done" But Just Why Is Mystery To Correspondents.

White Pines Camp, N. Y., July 16.—Al Smith, wet and Democratic, is to lunch with Calvin Coolidge, dry and Republican, today, but the public will never know about it photographically.

Pictures of New York's popular governor arriving at White Pines Camp? Certainly. Pictures of the governor and President together? No.

That is the edict on today's meeting of the two outstanding personalities for 1928, delivered by President Coolidge in person.

Mr. Coolidge inspected the marine camp, included in his summer establishment, last Thursday for the benefit of photographers. Following the event, one of the movie men approached the executive and inquired about the prospects of getting a picture today of him and his distinguished guest.

"I don't see how it can be done," retorted Mr. Coolidge sharply, and upon being pressed, repeated the statement several times. Why it can't be done is a mystery to both photographers and newspaper men who have accompanied the presidential party north.

Governor and Mrs. Smith and their official party arrived at Paul Smith's this morning by motor, preparatory to welcoming President and Mrs. Coolidge to New York state.

Future of Aviation in America Is Bright

Two Young Men Take Charge Of Aeronautics In Five-Year National Defense Program.

Washington, July 16.—With the formal induction into office today of F. Trubee Davison of New York as assistant secretary of war, in charge of aviation, and the signing of his first official document by Edward P. Warner of Massachusetts, in a similar navy post, the future of the nation's aeronautic development for national defense passed into the hands of youth.

Davison is 30 years old and Warner is but a year his senior. They are said to be the youngest men in the nation's history to assume such responsible executive posts in the government. Both announced their intention and determination to do their best to carry out the five-year aviation program, involving the expenditure of more than 150 million dollars and both took their posts with enthusiasm.

Charles S. Whitman Heads U. S. Lawyers

Denver, Col., July 16.—Charles Seymour Whitman, governor of New York from 1915 to 1919, was today named president of the American Bar Association.

The election took place at the conclusion of the sessions of the forty-ninth annual assembly of the association here.

Whitman is a former president of the board of city magistrates of New York, former judge of the Court of General Sessions and former district attorney of New York County.

Won't Let Caillaux Become a Dictator

French Finance Commission Refuses to Let Him Have Sole Power To Meet Finance Problems.

Paris, July 16.—The finance commission of the chamber of deputies tonight refused M. Caillaux's demand that he be given dictorial powers to deal with the financial situation.

M. Caillaux's proposal now will be taken direct to the chamber of deputies. The finance commission voted 14 to 13 against granting the powers asked by the finance minister.

THE OVER-ZEALOUS FIREMEN.

Pyromania is not a very uncommon thing. It breaks out frequently in boys, and sometimes in grown men. But what shall be said of a pyromaniac fireman?

Media, Pa., has two volunteer firemen in jail as incendiaries. They are accused of responsibility for 10 fires in the last few weeks. One of them made this remarkable statement to the district attorney:

"My chief ambition was to drive a fire engine. I like to go racing down the streets with the siren blowing and the people looking. But I wasn't allowed to drive the fire engine. So Hill and I planned the fires on Sunday when the regular driver would not be on duty."

Pyromania and megalomania—"exaggerated ego"—make a specially bad combination. It is a perfectly childish state of mind, of course. Yet many grown men can understand it, and sympathize with it a little more than they like to admit. It takes long for us all to evolve from the boy-savage stage.

PUT THE TAX ON WATER.

Opinions differ as to what are necessaries.

The city of Munich, Germany, needing more revenue, recently imposed a tax on beer. There was an immediate and widespread protest, on the ground that the city authorities had no business taxing "necessaries of life." So the intolerable tax was repealed and instead the tax was transferred to water.

Water is doubtless a luxury in Munich, as any of the infrequent Americans who have tried to get a glass of it with their meals in that city will testify. Probably the home of Muenchner beer believes, too, that anyone drinking water ought to be penalized.

Balloon tires ought to be cheap, observes an observer, considering that they're nearly all air.

What Other Editors Say

HOT AND CROSS

This is the time of year when tempers are on a hair-trigger and patience is more than a virtue. When the temperature gets to 90 degrees and the humidity rises, something happens in the chemistry of the human body and with the functioning of the human mind that makes us all "touchy" and ready to burst into the flame of anger at the slightest jar.

Peevishness is an accompaniment of the dog days, and dispositions are warped by the heat. Cool minds, and cool bodies go together, and both are rarities during the summer. If one would be sure of being diplomatic he must ride in an ice wagon and on the shady side.

The newspapers since the hot spell began are full of accounts of murder and sudden death, fits of anger that lead to the penitentiary or gallows—or to remorse. People who usually are good and respectable citizens in the winter, are turned into violent and raging maniacs in the summer and go about shooting their wives and choking their sweethearts and otherwise making nuisances of themselves.

And the usual run of citizens who abhor evil when the snow is on the ground, grow tolerant as they become torrid, and view without objection the laxity of morals that come with warm weather.

Cussedness is epidemic in the heated season and the higher the mercury rises, the less the devil has to do. It is as if the heat comes from the proximity of brimstone and the atmosphere endangers the spirit of the lower regions.

The result is that the whole world changes about July 1 and for three months we are as different from our real selves as if we were the black sheep of the family. Unless we sit on the safety valve from early morn until the cool breezes of evening set up, we are likely to do things that in our saner moments shock and embarrass us. We go off at half-cock and say irritating things, and we snap up our best friends in irritation when they slip in their statements or voice sentiments that the heat causes to exude from their fevered minds.

The citizen who can get through the summer without letting down his standard or giving the impression that he is a cross old bear with a sore head, will get double credit on St. Peter's legder, and there will be something added to those who merely keep out of jail, we suspect.—Ft. Madison Democrat.

VACATION SUGGESTIONS.

Railroad Shakespeares have been sending out such good vacation literature lately about the sylvan dells and bosky boarding houses that their constant readers have begun batting off mosquitoes.

Reading about your vacation in advance is the best part of it. Vacation literature as a rule is filled with many beautiful inaccuracies and joyous misstatements, so that the postage-stamp tourist who happens to be on a number of good mailing lists and knows how to drive a rocking chair has the ideal system of travel.

What we really need in this country in the way of tourist literature is not a series of word paintings that are just as sweet and dear as a high-school essay but rather a few plain, straightforward, honest suggestions. For the guidance of those who are searching only for reliable facts, the following helpful hints are offered:

1. Everything depends on beginning your vacation right and making a good start. This can best be done by oversleeping on the morning you are to leave, so you will be sure to miss your train.

2. If, however, you are going by car you can accomplish about the same results by having a good blowout just as you are starting away. Some tourists prefer beginning their vacations successfully by having their car stolen the first night out.

3. Many rest experts are now spending their entire vacations in their cars. This is recommended for the tired and fagged out brain worker. There is hardly anything the owner of a careworn and troubled mind could do that would be more helpful than sleeping in his car night after night with his feet stuck through the windshield.

4. Many persons who are just utterly too tired for words are going to Europe now for a week or ten days' rest. In that time the hustling vacationist, even if just terribly, terribly fatigued, can spend several hours in each of the great capitals. Excellent food and souvenir postal cards served everywhere.

5. Another plan now being followed by quite a few is to spend their vacations swimming the English Channel. Many who are all run down, with lassitude, severe headaches and occasional loss of memory, prefer something like this to staying home and taking yeast.

6. There are still others who are partial to the regulation summer hotel. Here those who are really and truly worn out and who just simply must get rested up, can golf from 5 a. m., till noon, play tennis, swim and paddle a canoe till the evening dinner hour, and then dance till time to dress and go out for golf again.

7. All that remains now is to wind up your vacation in triumph. To do this, wire the folks to meet you with a wheel chair and go home.—Harry Daniel in Thrift Magazine.

A USE FOR JUNKED CARS.

There is now an answer for the jokers who wonder what becomes of old automobiles—the ones that are too far gone for the "used car" market. Pierre, S. D., has solved a problem and answered the question by using there decrepit candidates for the junk pile to help build protective works against the treacherous Missouri river.

Pierre has always had to fight the river, which has a bad habit of changing its channels erratically and wiping out large areas of city-front land. The war department said the city authorities could build dikes or walls or whatever they needed, but the expense of such undertakings has delayed them.

Now a trial wing dam has been built, using junked motor cars to start with. They were placed along the mud flats, where they settled themselves rather firmly and encouraged a considerable deposit of nice, rich river sediment. Within a short time, according to glowing reports, "a new shore line was in the making" and the battered remnants of unwanted cars have been given a final opportunity to serve the community, thus illustrating some profound philosophy or natural law or other.

INTOLERANCE AND HAPPINESS.

Georges Clemenceau, France's great war premier, who is a scholar as well as a statesman and journalist, at the age of 85 has finished a pretentious book, written in his little cottage on the sea. It is full of random comment on science, history and things in general, and contains much of his personal philosophy. Here is one little passage quoted in an advance review of the work:

"One virtue above all I would recommend for obtaining a happy fulfillment of our personal evolution, and thereby of our general civilization. That is tolerance."

He speaks of tolerance as "the virtue which facilitates all of our accords," and as "opening every avenue of life leading to the freedom of the human mind."

It is a virtue not so highly prized as it ought to be, in these after-war years. The intolerance that created the war has grown since the armistice. Countries, races, groups and individuals all seem intolerant of each other today, to a discouraging degree. America needs to fight against this vice, if she seeks "a happy fulfillment of her evolution."

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—"Too much ammunition in too small a spot on the map" is, in general, the verdict of army men on the recent explosions which wrecked the navy's Lake Denmark (N. J.) munitions depot and threatened the army's neighboring Picatinny arsenal.

Naval officers, since it was their department's disaster, are not so ready to concede this, but unquestionably it is the consensus of opinion at the War Department.

All the precautions in the world, army experts assert, don't guarantee absolutely against an explosion where TNT, high power shells and ash cans are stored, but its proportions can be limited by limiting the amount of the explosives.

Enough of them to endanger a whole countryside, these authorities add, shouldn't be concentrated on a comparatively small reservation—at any rate, in peace time. The magazines should be widely scattered.

Structurally, the Lake Denmark magazines are described by military men who have seen them as having been the last word in design, for their purpose.

The walls were tremendously thick and strong and the roofs were simply laid on, not fastened.

The theory was that an explosion, should one occur, would not exert its force laterally but in the direction of least resistance, upward, hurling the unattached roof high in air and shooting straight up after it, as a charge of shot is fired from a gun barrel, the debris raining back upon the spot it started from.

This theory works out pretty well in practice when a single magazine blows up the army experts say, and the Lake Denmark method of construction may have tended to minimize the extent of the damage even there, but the shattering effect of a prolonged series of such explosions, it's pointed out, is enough to upset almost any theory.

Avoid Poorly-Balanced Breakfasts

Quaker Oats supplies excellent "food balance"

IF you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. You may have unenergetic mornings because your breakfasts lack certain important food elements.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

Arrow Rock Tavern Now Supports Self

Arrow Rock, July 16.—The old Arrow Rock Tavern, opened on April 23 after undergoing repairs, is now on a self-sufficing basis, according to J. P. Biggs, innkeeper. More than one thousand visitors stopped at the tavern on July 4. Fifty-six guests registered on that day, some as far as Washington, D. C.

Since the opening of the tavern a total of 1163 guests names have been written in the registration book. Mr. Biggs explained that this figure really should be larger, since about 40 per cent of the guests did not register.

The state purchased the tavern in 1923, turning it over to the Daughters of the American Revolution to be maintained as an historical landmark. Judge Joseph Huston built the Arrow Rock Tavern in 1830. The bricks used in construction were burned by his slaves on the present site of the building. The tavern has the distinction of serving the public continually since it was first established.

Strips of rubber around the windows will keep out the cold air.

On His Vacation, President Plays as He Works—On An Outlined Schedule

Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 16.—President Coolidge plays as he works—on schedule.

Here for his vacation among the Adirondack lakes and woods, he had a set time to fish; a time to walk; a time to sleep and to eat.

He goes about his play deliberately, just as in Washington he goes deliberately about the receiving of callers, signing of bills or conferring with his cabinet.

Here is his vacation schedule for a full day:

7 a. m.—Awakens.
7:30 a. m.—Breakfast.
8:30 a. m.—Goes fishing.
11 a. m.—Returns from fishing and reads mail, dictates letters and confers with his staff.
1 p. m.—Lunch. After lunch he takes a nap.
2 p. m.—Awakens and goes fishing once more.
5 p. m.—Returns from fishing and walks around the grounds of his camp.
7 p. m.—Dinner. After dinner he reads, plays with the dogs and chats with Mrs. Coolidge.
10:30 p. m.—Retires.

He dresses appropriately for every occasion. When fishing he wears a pair of raw hide boots, a rough suit with rough riding breeches and an old felt hat. With his fishing badge given him by Governor Al Smith of New York, displayed on the crown.

Walking he displays a like costume. Before dinner he changes to a lounge suit, the kind he always wears in Washington.

On rainy days, or on days when rain is expected he carries a worn black slicker, when the sun is particularly warm he often wears an old leghorn hat, with its rim pulled down all the way around.

Mrs. Coolidge, on the other hand, wears much the same clothes she wears in Washington. She is usually dressed in a light frock, which she wears all day. When she goes walking, generally once a day, she wears often a pair of boots similar in type to those worn by her husband. On several occasions, however, she has worn pumps while walking.

Northwest Territory Exposition Planned

East St. Louis, Ill., July 16.—Plans for the financing of an exposition in 1928 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the acquisition of the Northwestern Territory will be presented at a meeting of the regional fund committee of the St. Clair-Madison county Regional Planning Association.

At that time Paul B. Gorr, of the East Louis Journal and Mayor A. C. Gauen, of Collinsville, will appear before the committee to present preliminary plans and an estimate of the cost of financing what it is hoped will be an exposition of national importance.

Much of the history of the acquisition of the Northwestern Territory centers about Cahokia, historic settlement near here. Several of the first brick buildings are still standing at Cahokia, which is now little more than a crossroads.

The details of the exposition plans will be taken up by the educational and historical committees of the regional Planning Association. It is probable that a huge pageant will be enacted, portraying the early history of the territory.

Arrow Rock, July 16.—The Sappington Board of Trustees will petition the state legislature at the next session for an appropriation to maintain the Sappington Cemetery here, which houses two Missouri governors, Claiborne F. Jackson and M. M. Marmaduke.

Falls City, Neb., July 16.—Hoof prints and cowboy yells left their imprint on Falls City today as the Falls City roundup opened for three days of contests of the "wild and wooly" west.

For the rest of the week at least, Falls City will be a typical frontier town. Cowboys from the range countries of the west rode broncos over the streets where ordinarily automobiles hold sway.

Scores of wild horses, steers, and trained cow ponies were brought here from half a dozen western states by the dozens of cowboys who will participate in the many rodeo contests. The round-up was proclaimed today as the largest ever staged in this section of Nebraska and hundreds of persons from other cities and towns were expected to attend.

Girl Injured When Coupe Hits Tractor

Impact of Collision on Bridge Near Skidmore Damages Both Pleasure Car and Heavier Machine.

Miss Rosetta Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Thompson, west of Skidmore, received injuries about her face Monday morning when the Ford coupe in which she was riding, collided with a Ford tractor on the west river bridge.

James Gale had started with his tractor and a road drag to drag the roads and was forced to stop about the center of the bridge. Virgil Thompson and his sister were coming from the west in a Ford coupe, on their way east of town, where they had been working. Thompson claimed the sun was shining in his eyes and did not see the tractor in time to avert the accident.

The broken glass from the windshield struck Miss Thompson on the face and cut a large gash on her nose and upper lip.

The center of the radiator on the coupe hit the left front wheel of the tractor, bending the radiator, radius rod, breaking front axle, windshield and one front light on the coupe, and knocking the left front wheel of the tractor out of line. The front wheel on the tractor is about five inches wide and the spokes are made of 1½ inch iron about ⅝-inch thick. Two of these spokes were bent almost double and the outside rim of the wheel was bent in about five inches. The front wheels of the tractor also have an inch ring around the center. The heavy axle on the tractor was also bent out of shape and the tractor rolled back about six feet and hit the drag when the coupe came in contact with it.

After the accident Virgil ran to town after another car to take his sister to the doctor, but Clarence Smith, who was going out to Curtis Hilberts to work, stopped and brought Miss Thompson to town.

It is estimated that it will cost more to repair the tractor than it will to repair the coupe.—Skidmore News.

NEW PARK TO BE DEDICATED

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK AT BIG SPRING CEREMONY.

CONTAINS 5,000 ACRES

Scenic Tract Near Van Buren Is One of Most Important in State's Playground System.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 16.—Big Spring State Park, five miles south of Van Buren, Mo., which will be dedicated tomorrow is one of the most important parks in Missouri's State Park System, according to Keith McCanse, state game and fish commissioner. The state parks are a part of the game and fish department having been purchased and are being maintained through hunting and fishing license fees.

Governor Sam A. Baker will speak at the dedication of the park, which will be conducted under the auspices of the Missouri Ozarks Chamber of Commerce, A. A. Buford, secretary.

Big Spring State Park consists of 5,000 acres of rugged, scenic forest.

The most notable feature of the park is the Big Spring itself, which the visitor can hear roaring a half mile before he reaches the park. This is the most magnificent spring in the United States. The word spring is a misnomer, as it is, in fact, an underground river that forces its way to the surface at the base of a limestone bluff that towers 500 feet above it. The average flow of this spring is 240,000,000 gallons of water a day. When flush it has flowed 543,000,000 gallons of water in 24 hours.

The boundary on one side of this park is formed by Current River, the swiftest of the beautiful, spring fed, crystal streams of the Ozarks. Boating, bathing, picnicking and fishing are among the activities that predominate.

Stately pines and majestic oaks are conspicuous in the virgin forest which composes a part of the park.

One of the interesting features of Big Spring State Park is Uncle Ike, veteran woodsman and guide, who is game keeper for the park. Uncle Ike lives alone in a log cabin in the remotest section of this rugged area. His duties consist of propagating wild turkey, coaxing deer into the sanctuaries and protecting the park from forest fires.

Miss Vivian Buhler Speaks at Rock Port

Miss Vivian Buhler of this city was a guest of honor at a meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary of Rock Port Tuesday night at the Memorial Building there. Miss Buhler is committeewoman from the fourth district.

After a musical program by Rock Port talent, Miss Buhler made a talk in which she explained the purpose of the Auxiliary. She told of some of the activities of the Maryville group, now a year old and having fifty members. Among them were the membership drive to which the local Auxiliary challenged the Legion post and which won; subscribing to magazines for the veterans' hospital in Excelsior Springs; sending of home-made candy and cookies; and helping needy families of soldiers.

The meeting also was attended by a large delegation from Hamburg, Ia.

Burlington Junction Man Has Big Garden

About the busiest man in town is D. B. Warren, who operates a large truck garden in the east part of town.

Mr. Warren is now picking tomatoes from 7,500 tomato plants and is keeping the merchants in three or four neighboring cities supplied, aside from taking care of the home demand.

He has one of the finest gardens to be found anywhere and certainly understands the growing of vegetables; his products always meeting with a ready sale, wherever they are shown.—Burlington Junction Post.

Nails and Cartridges Part of Cow's Diet

Kansas City, Kan., July 16.—A cow with a goat's appetite was found at a packing plant here when a Hereford was butchered.

Articles found in the cow's stomach included: eight brass shotgun shell caps, fourteen pistol cartridge shells, ten wire nails, one wire staple, one piece of saw blade, and scraps of brass, iron and steel.

The metal in the cow's stomach weighed one and a quarter pounds. The animal was in perfect health, and had been approved by a government inspector before sent to the slaughter house.

ARGUING WITH GOD

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for July 18, 1926.
Read Exodus 3.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

One characteristic usually accredited to Missourians is that they have to be shown. A great deal of sport has been poked at us and when I am away from home and announce that I am from Missouri, invariably somebody says, "You have to be shown." I do not know where the catch phrase originated. A great many writers have protested and objected and become indignant, but I am rather proud of the reputation Missouri has in this line. It means that we do not take for granted everything we hear and that it would be useless to try to sell a Missourian the Washington monument without an abstract of title.

Sometimes we carry our reluctance to be convinced too far. It is all right to demand and insist on being shown but there are some who never can be shown, who never change their minds and who refuse to be convinced. I am not talking to this class. I am talking to the men and women who desire to do what God wants them to do, to live as He would like for them to live, but who insist on knowing whether or not God is really demanding or desiring certain action on their part. I have little respect for the mind which accepts every plausible presentation, religious or otherwise, as true and plunges ahead without thought, plan or specifications. We make many of our religious mistakes in just this way.

Moses argued with God. He put forth every argument he knew. He said he was not the man for the job and when pressed said he could not make a speech and that he was afraid his own people would turn on him. But when Moses finally decided and started in on the work, he never let go until the work was finished. He argued the matter out at the beginning, accepted the appointment and then stood up to it through thick and thin for forty years.

I read the story of Moses this way. When he was forty years old he was a nobleman at the court of Pharoah in Egypt. He had a college education and he had riches and power. He had not only studied books and been admitted to the mysteries of the priesthood, but he had studied the conditions of the Hebrews, six hundred thousand of them, his own people. They were slaves, oppressed and abused. Moses wanted to do something about it. He was young and enthusiastic. He did not doubt his power and ability. If God had asked him to lead them out of bondage then, in the experience of youth he would have declared himself thoroughly competent. He even tried to get results by direct action and killed an Egyptian.

Then Moses had to run for his life. He knew that he had some relatives somewhere in the mountains of Midian and, as most of us do, hunted up his kin-folk. He found Jethro, a great chief, a descendant of Abraham by his marriage to Keturah. He settled down in Midian, married Jethro's daughter and began the second term of his education.

Taking care of sheep in the desert and on the mountain-side Moses had plenty of time to think. Lying beneath the stars at night he reviewed in his mind his life in Egypt. He recalled his knowledge of the Hebrew people. He followed in memory the story of Abraham and then the line of his own lineage. I do not doubt that his mother Jochabed had told Moses all of the Hebrew history and the Hebrew legends and the promises of God to this people.

In the long days and nights in Midian he thought it all through. He hoped some great man would come miraculously and rescue the nation. He wanted to do something about it. Then he gradually began to have a plan. God talked to him and he talked with God. As the time grew near, when Moses had been forty years in Midian, the call from God became clearer. He began to understand that he himself was the man, that a great duty faced him.

Then Moses argued with God. He was doing just what we all should do when facing any great and important undertaking. He was thinking it through. He knew he would have to be the mouthpiece of the nation if he succeeded in this work and he was a poor speaker. Did Moses learn how to pray on the mountains alone with his problem? He did. Moses was forty years working out his problem. Jesus spent forty days in the desert before beginning His great work.

Did you ever argue with God? When the church committee came around for your contribution to help build the church did you argue that you needed the money, that you could only spare a small amount and your arguments sounded quite reasonable. Did you argue with God when your son or your daughter wanted to go as a missionary, when that boy you wanted to see succeed in business, wanted to be a preacher? You did and you talked him out of it.

Moses argued with God. He advanced every argument he could think of. But Moses came through. When the whole thing was thought out he went to his father-in-law and resigned his job. He told his family good-bye and went back to Egypt.

It is a hard thing to know when God is calling you to do a great work. It is hard to decide what you should do when faced with important decisions. We may make mistakes. I have known many men preaching who should have been in business and I have known business men who should have been preachers.

The man who is really worthwhile and who can do the work is the one who is modest about it.

The man who fights it out, who makes up his mind and answers his call and then puts the job through is the real worth while fellow.

Moses was one of the greatest characters whose story illumines the pages of history. His like appears only once in thousands of years. It is, I think, worth while for us all to study the character of Moses, the things which made him great and the things which he accomplished.

It was a man sized job Moses undertook. He pitted his strength, his wits and his life against the greatest men of the age and he won out.

He won out because he was doing God's work, because God was with him in every move and because he believed in God.

THE CALL OF MOSES.

Scripture Lesson—Exodus 2. 11 to 4:18.

Exodus 3:10-15.

10. Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

11. And Moses said unto God: Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12. And he said: Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13. And Moses said unto God: Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them: The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? What shall I say unto them?

14. And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM; and he said: Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you.

15. And God said moreover unto Moses: Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you; this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

Exodus 4: 10-12.

10. And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou has spoken unto thy servant; but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11. And the Lord said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the Lord?

12. Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

Golden text.—Certainly I will be with thee.—Exodus 3. 12.

666 Attend Christian Church Bible School

Many Persons Present At Orchestra Program Sunday Night—Motion Picture Will Be Soon.

Attendance at the Bible school at the First Christian Church last Sunday was 666. The orchestra program given Sunday night drew a large crowd. Eighty-one were in the Men's Bible Class, which meets at 9:30 o'clock every Sunday morning in the I. O. O. F. hall.

A contest is being held between the men's and women's classes of the Bible school.

A mid-summer Sunday school rally day is being planned for August 1 and it is hoped to have one thousand persons in attendance.

At the morning church services Sunday, the Rev. R. E. Musgrave, pastor, will have for his subject "In the Midst of the Years." The service closes promptly at 11:30 o'clock.

A motion picture, "The Good Samaritan," will be shown Sunday night. The Rev. Mr. Musgrave will give a sermonette on this subject preceding the showing of this picture. The public is cordially invited to attend this and all other services.

Bell Hangers' Services No Longer in Demand

Modern scientific inventions which have spelled the ash heap for old-fashioned usages have sounded the death knell for another once respected and prosperous vocation—bell hanging.

Like the makers of clipper ships, hoopskirts and the sundry other developments of the past which have come and gone, struck down by the march of progress and fashion, the bell hanger of today—and his class is a handful—is a man virtually without a job.

New York city, which less than 30 years ago required the constant attention of hundreds of bell hangers, now finds use for less than half a score. Electric doorbells are blamed for the passing of bell-hanging artisans.

P. Werner, owner of a tiny West side shop, outside of which hangs the same sign he placed there years ago when he first opened for business, is one of the few surviving members of the rear guard of bell hangers. A few ancient homes, clinging to relics of the past, still claim his services. But electricity, he said, has ruined his business.

When Werner, then a young man, first started hanging door bells the trade was then in its heyday. Father Knickerbocker, tired of thunderous knockers than in vogue, demanded a new method of announcement and bells—operated by the pulling of a lever outside, which set bells in the home a-jingling—came into being.

For a brief few decades, the jangling bells were pre-eminent. Bell hangers were proud of their art. For years their ingenious arrangements, elaborate or simple, according to the householder's taste, announced the visitor. Some even played music.

Then came electricity. The public took up the new wrinkle of science and electric door bells, operated by the mere pushing of a button, rudely ousted their clumsier predecessor.

"What will be next?" soliloquized Werner, "I don't know. Scientists can do anything. Perhaps wireless doorbells or telepathy?"

M. E. Church Notes.

Dent, Minn., July 10, '26.

The pastor and family are now camping on Star Lake, at Spruce Lodge. We have been busy and are feeling fine. We have caught so far (Saturday noon) just about 100 fish, mostly eat and sun fish. Strawberries are just getting ripe, perhaps we can get a few. We think occasionally of the Clearmont people. This country has been exceedingly dry since last fall. My card is about full, so must stop. Hope everybody at home gets on well.

H. F. DORCAS, Pastor.

Baptist Church Notes.

Yes, the spirit of last Sunday's services was fine at every service, though the attendance was not up to standard. We had the best covenant and business meeting on Saturday that we have had this year; Church and Sunday School officers and teachers re-elected and messengers and alternates elected to the Association, which meets with us Sept. 9-10. The Workers Conference of this year was held at the Bethel church July 8. More than forty in attendance from Maryville, Tarkio, Rock Port, Clearmont, Savannah, St. Joseph and Bethel.

Sunday school at 10 o'clock.

The pastor will preach at Workman Chapel, next Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

W. W. LAUGHLIN, Pastor.

Christian Church Notes.

The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was very encouraging also the plans that are being made to increase the attendance of the Sunday school shows a spirit worth while.

In an attempt to find out what the majority of the people want to know, in a Biblical sense, there will be a question box at the church, where questions that pertain to the church, church ordinances, the Lord's Day, the Bible, God's Plan of the ages, etc., can be deposited and the question that is in the majority will receive first attention. Anyone desiring a Biblical answer to your question, is welcome to use the question box, whether a church member or not. Sunday school, church and communion services, next Sunday morning and church services at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

AT BARNARD.

(From Barnard Bulletin).

The program at the Christian Church Sunday evening drew the usual large crowd and all enjoyed the efforts of those on the program.

C. L. Phillips favored the crowd with a solo and was given a strong ovation for his efforts. Miss Ruth Cook with a violin solo and John Donaldson with a cornet solo, and a quartette by Mrs. Ed. Adams, Mrs. L. D. Goforth, Ed. Thompson and Ed. Adams, were also features of the program. The efforts of the younger members were equally as well rendered and pleased the crowd. Among the little folks who wave numbers on the program were: Russell Sherman, violin solo; Gene Strader, reading; DeEtta Skidmore, reading; Betty Jean and Beulah Pauline Campbell, duet; Louise Schmitt, piano solo; and Allen Strader, reading.

The orchestra gave three numbers which were well rendered. In the absence of the regular leader, Mrs. R. W. Bridges, Ed Thompson had charge and although he has not worked with the orchestra, the numbers given were enjoyed very much.

Owen Winemiller also gave a short talk of the Christian Endeavor Society of which he has been a member while in school at Chillicothe.

An announcement was made that Roy Cook's class would have charge of the regular August program, which will be Sunday night following the picnic. Mrs. Tom Cook is chairman of the committee.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Walter Scott and Harlowe R. Hoyt

The Calling of Moses.

Moses, the child grew to manhood, instructed in all the wisdom of Pharaoh's court. He chose a military life and distinguished himself in Egypt's wars.
So Moses came to be forty years of age. Coming, one day, upon an Egyptian overseer abusing an oppressed Hebrew, he struck the offender dead. To save himself, he fled into the land of Midian.
In Midian fields, Zipporah, daughter of Reuel, the high priest, tended her father's sheep. Shepherds annoyed the girl as she watered her flock, and Moses drove them from the well. Later, Zipporah became his wife.
For forty years, Moses remained in Midian. Then as he tended his sheep, he beheld a bush burning in the wilderness, yet undestroyed.
In the flames, Jehovah manifested himself, ordering Moses to go as leader to the Israelites. Unwillingly, he obeyed, for he doubted his ability.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gaillard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Professor Husted and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his step daughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Professor Husted. The old professor lives like a hermit and Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the professor's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board and their host introduces himself as Pol Gaillard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist.

Pol is invited to dine with the Cadrigans and through Veronica meets Professor Husted. While calling on the professor Pol's boat is cut adrift. He recovers it, but the next night an attempt is made to sink it. Professor Husted invites Pol to stay at his house. Pol accepts, but later goes back to his boat, as he feels his interest in the professor's affairs has disturbed the old man. Pol pays his dinner call on the Cadrigans. Veronica is out and Cadrigan receives him. During the conversation Pol uncovers his animosity toward Cadrigan and they quarrel.

Cadrigan threatens him, and Pol fearing an attack on the professor goes to warn Veronica to stay away from Husted Point. Pol meets Gulia, daughter of Cadrigan's superintendent, and she confirms his suspicions that an attack is planned.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

VERONICA DISREGARDS A WARNING.

Gulia glanced back nervously over her shoulder and then said to Pol, "Say, Mr. Gaillard, if I was you, I'd keep away from old man Husted's."

"I'm not a young girl, Gulia."

"Well, you're a stranger here, and sometimes that's a risky thing to be. If that old man's going to be so stubborn, he'll have to take what's coming. Not that anybody's going to hurt him, but he ought to listen to reason."

"Is your father mixed up in this, Gulia?" Pol asked directly.

She looked distressed. "Well now, Mr. Gaillard, I can't say, but he belongs body and soul to Cadrigan, and Cadrigan's a stiff proposition to get up against. He wants that property and means to have it by hook or crook. He'll put out or buy up anybody that gets in his way, and he's no piker. When he gets out his check book he waves a wicked pen. Honest, I gotta go."

"Go ahead, Gulia, and thanks for the tip."

She drove along. Pol rose and continued blithely on his way. Coming in due time to the town, Pol glanced at the church clock. It was twenty minutes to six. Pol went into the garage and bought an electric torch. He then went into the closed telephone booth and called up Mr. Burke's residence in Greenwich. He was told by a servant that Mr. Burke had not yet arrived from New York, but was expected at any moment. He then asked to speak with Mr. Cadrigan if he had arrived. "Yes, Mr. Cadrigan has just arrived."

Cadrigan's smooth bass, tinged with impatience, asked his identity and his business.

"Pol Gaillard speaking, Mr. Cadrigan. I would advise that you call up your house and tell Miss Veronica that on no account is she to go to Professor Husted's house tonight. I shall be there myself."

There was a moment's pause. Then Cadrigan answered in a husky growl. "I have already told her I do not want her to go there at all. How did you know I was here?"

"I did not, Mr. Cadrigan. But I know it now."

"Why have you called me up to tell me this?" Cadrigan demanded.

"Because I did not want Miss Veronica exposed to danger."

"Look here!" Cadrigan's voice held a snarl. "What makes you think there's any danger threatening?"

"My recent experience, Mr. Cadrigan."

"Well, what's that got to do with your expecting to find me here at Burke's?"

"To get a line on me, sir. Please give my compliments to Mr. Burke and tell him I received his letter and that he may shortly expect to hear from me. Goodby, Mr. Cadrigan."

Pol went aboard his boat. It was then about six. He got out his diary, into which the water had not penetrated, and wrote in his peculiar system of baffling code.

"Lunched with Mrs. Tate and examined her grounds. Stopped to pay food call at Cadrigan's. Had pleasant visit with Mr. C., who then left in car for N. Y. Miss V. out riding. Did not see her. Walked back on shore road—"

These brief lines had the mark to indicate that these were actual facts. Those following read: "9 p. m. Did not go ashore. Cool night with blustering N. W. wind, and so to bed."

As soon as it was dark, Pol went ashore. He had changed into a dark gray short suit with rubbersoled brogues and pocketed the electric torch purchased on his return. A mile and a half of brisk walk brought him to the entrance of Husted's land. He climbed the gate and followed the rough trail. It led straight to the old homestead, through a scrub of second growth on which were many small beeches. Pol paused, and cut one of these of cane length and almost cudgel thickness, then made his way to the house under cover of the big trees that flanked it on that side. There was a light from the window of the living room. Pol walked quickly to the door and rapped.

Veronica's voice said, "Who's him. Veronica, in dark jersey dress, there?"

"Pol Gaillard."

"What do you want?"

"Let me in, please, and I'll tell you."

The door opened in a grudging fashian. Pol entered, then closed it behind turned to him a pale and angry face.

"So here you are again?" she said. "Don't you think you've done damage enough with your interference?"

"Where is the professor?" Pol asked.

"He is upstairs in bed. He is ill. The result of your meddling. I should like to know on what authority you telephoned my stepfather to forbid my coming here?"

PLAY SAFE IN TAKING PHYSICAL EXERCISE

Strenuous Activity for the Young, Middle-Aged or Old Should Be Indulged in Only Upon the Advice of a Medical Expert.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Somebody told a story about an old man so remarkable well that a newspaper reporter asked why he had lived so long and kept so strong. "I suppose it is because you take systematic exercise," said the reporter.

The startling reply of the old gentleman was, "The only exercise I take is acting as pall-bearer to my friends who have indulged in strenuous exercise!"

This is a ridiculous yarn, but it has in it a suggestion of value. Exercise is useful so long as it really is exercise and not violent and difficult work.

Too many athletes die of heart or blood vessel trouble. Too much strain on the organs of circulation will do real and lasting harm. There must be good sense in practising any and all kinds of sports or games. They must not be too exacting and strenuous or to overtax the organs.

Where I live in the Summer-time is on the edge of the Interstate Park, near Bear Mountain. In the park tens of thousands of Boy Scouts camp every year. Not a day goes by but pairs or groups of Scouts pass my house.

I approve of the scouting idea, because it gives boys a chance to exercise under the direction of men who are experts. They know what is good for boys and when the individual boy cannot keep up to par.

What I say about Boy Scouts is even truer of Girl Scouts. It does not pay to be too active until the experts say it is all right.

All these warnings apply twice over to persons in middle life, or past middle life. Unless there has been a lifetime of sensible and sustained exercise, it will not do to take up some unusual activity and play it too hard in the beginning.

I have a friend, a doctor, advanced in years, who plays many sets of tennis every day in the season. He has remarkable soft blood vessels and an unusual heart. Nature has been kind to him and he carries on very strenuously, thriving with it all.

But because my friend can do this is no argument in favor of other men and women past seventy, or just past sixty, or for that matter, just past fifty, attempting to imitate him. Disaster is perilously near if persons who have never exercised much, suddenly take up some active sport.

You must not undertake these activities until you have been looked over by your family doctor. He will examine your heart and blood vessels, take your blood pressure, and assure himself you are all right. It pays to be on the safe side.

When you go to a well-conducted bath establishment, your are not permitted to take very hot baths, very cold baths, needle baths or other stimulating baths, until you have been carefully examined by a doctor. It does not add to the reputation of a bathing establishment and they do not propose to let you die. But, of course, they have a higher motive than this—they honestly desire to have the series of baths do you good and not harm.

Have your exercises supervised and then be sensible about them.

Missouri Egg Show Offers Cash Prizes

Awards Include Loving Cup, $25 for Best Dozen Brown Eggs and Same for White.

The Missouri Egg Show, to be held in connection with the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, Mo., August 14-21, promises to be the biggest of its kind ever held in the state. The awards are the most liberal ever offered, consisting of a beautiful loving cup, $25.00 for the best dozen of brown eggs, $25 for the best dozen of white eggs, and fifty other cash prizes.

One does not have to be a breeder of high quality poultry to win in this show. Many winners in the past have been men and women who have only utility flocks. The rules follow:

"Select fifteen of your best eggs, allowing three eggs for substitutes in case of breakage while en route, pack with excelsior in a market basket and ship by parcel post or prepaid express to the Missouri Egg Show, State Fair, Sedalia, Mo. Eggs must not be received not later than noon, August 14th. If you do not win a premium higher than third, you will receive more for your eggs than you can sell them for on the market.

"As soon as possible after the show, the State Marketing Bureau will issue a special bulletin, giving a brief description of the show, together with the names and addresses of all the exhibitors as well as the names and addresses of those whose contributions made it possible for the Marketing Bureau to put on this show.

Weak From Hunger, Mrs. Scott Vows She'll Stick

With Russell Scott, her husband, sentenced to hang in Chicago on Oct. 15 for murdering a drug store clerk, Mrs. Catherine Scott is starving herself in a glass cage on the stage of a Detroit theater to raise money for his defense. She stays in bed with a nurse constantly in attendance, as the photo shows, and, although she admitted she was weakening after the first few days, she vows she will stick to the finish.

Boonville Benefitted by River and Roads

Boonville, July 16.—The inland waterway development and the completion of Highway No. 5 have benefited Boonville more than any other city in the state. The town has profited by its strategic location for water and road traffic. A conservative estimate of $75,000 in tourist trade annually, is noted. The population increased by more than 2000 in the last two years. The present census figure is 6500.

In order to facilitate traffic a movement is under way to take traffic off of Main to High Street. Twenty-two busses go through Boonville daily. As one enters the city through the bridge recently constructed over the Missouri river, he strikes the heart of the business district.

Located in the center of the loess soil district and of a rich orchard country, Boonville is easily accessible to the State University at Columbia, the capital at Jefferson City, and the state fair at Sedalia. A natural park district, as yet undeveloped, overlooks the river. Edger C. Nelson, publisher of the Boonville Advertiser, is at present planning to have the state appropriate funds for developing this cite as a state park.

Independence to Have Centennial Next Fall

Independence, July 16.—This city is at present planning to celebrate her centennial next fall. A joint meeting of representatives of the civic clubs, patriotic organizations, and commercial societies will meet within ten days to form a Centennial Association. This body will make out plans for the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city next fall.

Independence was selected as the county seat of Jackson County in 1827 because it was located in the center of the rich timber district. At one time it was believed that Independence would rival Kansas City as a commercial center.

The entry of the Mormons and the founding of the city have been almost simultaneous. The Mormons at present compose 50 per cent of the pop- Centenary" this fall, giving the varied ulation. W. L. Webb, Jackson County and interesting history of this section historian, will publish his book, "The of the country.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 16.—Wheat prices today again climbed sharply higher after their recent setback on the Chicago Board of Trade. The bulge was caused by the pessimistic reports from the Northwest and was only shaded at the close by heavy profit taking. However, gains of over 2 cents were maintained. Corn on the other hand was fractionally below yesterday's final figures but oats showed a good advance.

In one of the heaviest trading days of the past few months, wheat gained as much as 4 cents early in the day. Heavy profit taking shaded the day's gains but quotations were from 1½ to 2¾ cents above yesterday's close.

Reports of the serious condition of the grain in the Northwest was the primary cause for the bulge. Other news items also were bullish.

Corn did not display the strength of wheat and although price levels went up early they could not withstand the pressure of profit taking and closed about a quarter cent lower in all positions.

Oats had a quiet day, with but light trading in the pit, but because of a strong technical position, it was able to follow wheat and register advances of from a half to ⅞ of a cent on all deliveries.

Provisions closed uneven.

CORPORATIONS GIVEN PRAISE

U. S. LEADERSHIP DUE TO THEM, SAYS F. N. SHEPHERD.

OWNERSHIP BY PUBLIC

But It Is Right Sort and Defeats Socialism, Says Spokesman for American Bankers.

Butte, Mont. July 16.—The American coroporation form of enterprise was described as the "greatest single instrument for economic advancement devised by man," by F. N. Shepherd, Executive Manager, American Bankers Association, here today in an address before the Montana Bankers Association convention.

"The United States has attained economic pre-eminence, not because of its vast natural resources, but by reason of the spirit, energy and enterprise of the people," Shepherd said.

"Our national wealth between the census estimates of 1900 and 1922 increased two hundred and fifty billion dollars. With only five per cent of the world's land area and six per cent of its population, the United States produces forty-one per cent of the coal, fifty-two per cent of its pig iron, fifty-two per cent of the timber, fifty-nine per cent of its copper, sixty-four per cent of the world's petroleum and seventy-five per cent of its cotton. We have built and now operate thirty-five per cent of the world's railroad mileage, forty per cent of its installed waterpower, and fifty-seven per cent of its telegraph and telephone lines.

"Under the guidance of the executive, the inventor and the engineer have lifted the burden from the backs of the people and placed it upon the tireless shoulders of the machine. In agriculture where a generation ago one man, afoot, bending over a hand planter, put in two acres of corn a day, he now rides in comfort on a check-rower and plants twenty acres per day. In industry, one man plus a machine, takes the place of ten shoemakers, twelve men with an automatic conveyor replace 150 coal miners, and so on. Where 25 years ago we used 13 million horsepower in industry, today we use 55 million. At the same time the wages of labor have increased steadily and the hours of labor have lessened.

"The modern corporation is the greatest single instrument for economic advancement devised by man. Eighty-five per cent of American business is conducted through corporate enterprise. Corporation is fast becoming a synonym for cooperation. Corporate organization admits of the widest distribution of ownership and the most effective application and efficient use of capital.

"The fourteen million owners of corporate bonds and shares and that evermore-widely-spread interest, represented by some fifty million life insurance policies, mean a diffusion of ownership of property which is America's answer to European socialistic devices. It is public ownership of the right sort. It means business managed by brains instead of politicians. The antidote for socialism is ownership.

"The fact that a relatively few men have grown enormously rich in this process is merely an incident. Their wealth is compensation for the risk of enterprise or exceptional managerial skill. Except the negligible amount of wealth they consume, their fortune remains in the service of society, and their wealth is small compared to the enormous volume of the distributed wealth that the great mass are kept busy producing and consuming, each, generally speaking, in the proportion to his individual economic deserts of energy, industry and initiative. The outstanding result is that great wealth has been brought to the mass of society."

Man Plans Suicide, Then Loses Nerve

Iowan Sends Money and Note to Brother, Then Asks for Railroad Fare Home.

W. E. Beam of Riverton, Iowa, arrived in Albany Thursday and registered at the Merchants' Hotel. He didn't tell anyone any of his business, his reason for being here or anything, but was friendly and visited with the hotel people.

Friday he wrote a letter to his brother with whom he made his home, in Riverton, and told him that he was going to commit suicide. He gave no reason for the act but enclosed the money he had with him at the time.

His brother received the letter Saturday and immediately telephoned Sheriff Brown to hold the man until he got here, but when the sheriff went to the hotel for him he was gone and had not said where he was going. Sunday his brother and Deputy Sheriff Graham of Riverton arrived in Albany to get the man, but learned that he had disappeared, so returned home.

Monday morning Mr. Beam, brother of the would-be suicide, received a telephone call from his brother, who said he was in Darlington and wanted him to send him money to come home on. The brother at Riverton told him to wait at the station and wired Sheriff Brown of his location. The sheriff immediately went to Darlington and brought the man to his office in this city, where he kept him until 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, when his brother and the deputy sheriff from Iowa came for him.

The man gave no reason for the threatened suicide, but said when the time came to do it he had lost his nerve. He was in no financial difficulty, as he had money in the bank at home, and the only reason that can be presented is that he became mentally unbalanced. He left home on Wednesday without giving his brother his destination or saying when he would be back. He is 52 years old.

Considerable excitement was caused among the people who heard of the letter, because they expected that he had gone to some secluded place and killed himself.—Albany Capital.

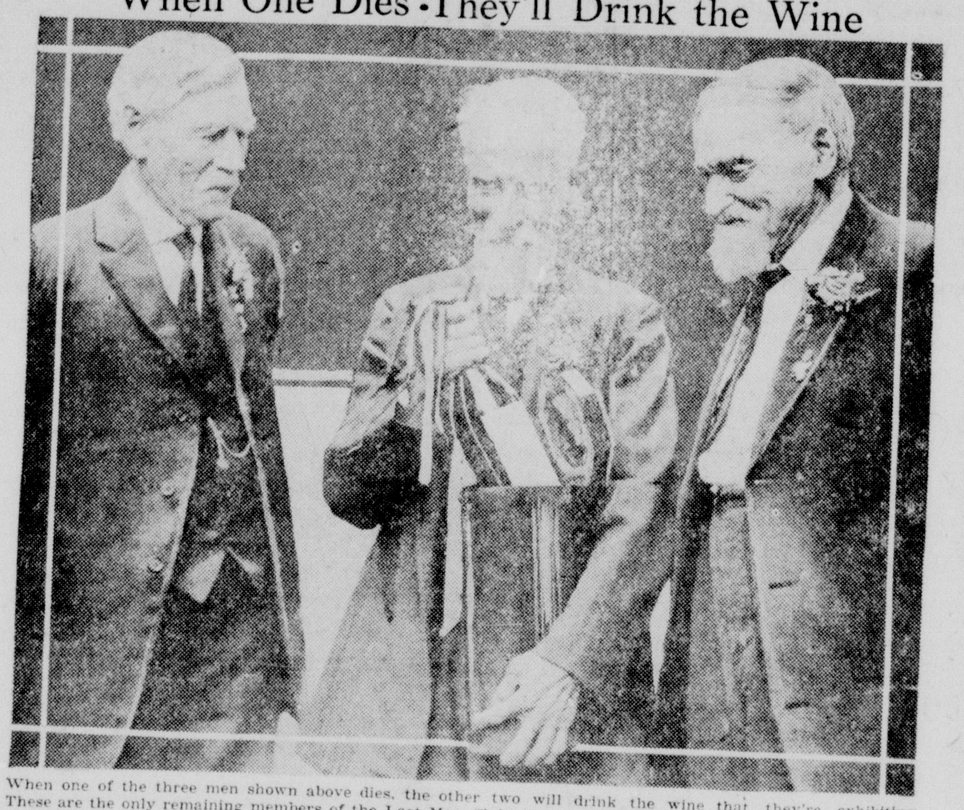
When One Dies They'll Drink the Wine



When one of the three men shown above dies, the other two will drink the wine that they're exhibiting. These are the only remaining members of the Last Man Club, formed in 1885 by 34 Civil War veterans, who bought a bottle of wine and agreed that the last man should drink it. Now, with only three men left, they have agreed that the last two men must drink. The Volstead act, incidentally, hasn't cramped their plans at all. Left to right they are John S. Goff, Peter Hall and Charles Lockwood. They hold their annual banquet July 21 at Minneapolis, Minn.

Leaders Tell Student Side

to the body in form of a motion, it was almost without support, and was voted down with practical unanimity.

"The man who claimed to represent the Gazette was finally asked to leave the auditorium after he had repeatedly tried to take the floor. This action was taken to prevent a noutsider from agitating the student body on a matter so far removed from our objective.

"Events of the last few days have led some to believe that the student objective has broadened and that other matters have incorporated themselves into the desire for reinstatement of Dean Colbert. Such is not the case. Our objective is, and will continue to be, an honorable effort to induce the board to rescind former action.

Students Are Loyal.

"With other matters we have no dealing. We zealously resent any intimation that our loyalty to the College is wavering.

"As president of the student association, I strongly resent the action of any institution or individual calculated to stir the student body into unwarranted action, when such action is utterly foreign to the desires and objectives of the student body.

"When a person approaches me and, claiming to represent the citizenry of Missouri, urges me to incite rebellion as head of the student association, I can feel that I am justified in believing that his motive is for the furtherance of "yellow" journalism rather than for the good of the institution, town, and state of Missouri, and particularly Dean George H. Colbert."

That the student body is seriousmindedly considering the Colbert matter was asserted by Ward Barnes, a member of the student committee. Barnes said that the students are not considering radical action and that the great majority of them are anxious not to overstep the bounds.

Radicalism Fails.

At the meeting yesterday, Wilbur Williams, a student, suggested that unless Dean Colbert was reinstated that the student body pledge not to return to the College for the fall term.

John W. Decker, one of the oldest students at the institution, took issue with him.

"We don't want to quit the College. We don't want a single student to leave. We want more students to come here. We want to use our heads.

"I have been coming to school for a long time to get my degree, and I'll probably come a long time more, but you can bet your life I'm going to keep on coming."

Mr. Decker was vigorously applauded.

Mr. Blomfield also said:

"As spokesman for the student body, I feel that the action of the board of regents in their promise to consider the student petition at their next meeting reflects fairness and deliberation. With such feeling, the student association yesterday voted to let the matter rest, realizing that fairness can only follow fairness."

Colbert Addresses Meeting.

The students asked Dean Colbert to speak before the meeting yesterday. He said in part:

"I do not know the exact purpose of this committee. I caution you to do nothing rash."

This morning there was a notice on the College bulletin board, signed by Dean Colbert. It read:

"I have the utmost confidence in your committee. Give your thoughtful consideration to its reports and to its counsel."

That the dean's popularity with the students is unquestionable was shown by the reception given him when he appeared at the mass meeting yesterday. The students applauded vigorously and then stood in respect to the administrator.
